

June 9, 1943 Tunisia, North Africa

Dear Mick,

In the last letter you wrote me you told me it was very confusing my traveling westward. I don't see why. You know there was a war going on in these parts. A good bit of it was by air, as you guessed, but it just wasn't for the ride. I was going some place. I got a letter from Izzy this morning telling me of Mannies induction. If you can find out I would like to know what branch of service. I hope its the infantry. They need strong backs and weak minds. The way you talk you can't last long at Portsmouth. I guess you'll put to sea before its all over. Do you remember the time I went to Fort Story to see Abe? Well that was the time I saw Henry Marsus. I didn't get to see his wife but I heard she was O.K. Maybe you could hit 'em up for a good meal. I sure wish I could. We haven't had any fresh meat for a long time. The food at that ain't so bad tho. We got a issue of life savers the other day cheaper than what they sell in the States. Now if we could just get some ice cream this would be a perfect war. There is a movie on tonight so I am about to take off. Its nice sitting out in the open watching a movie sweating out every plane that flies above.

So long,

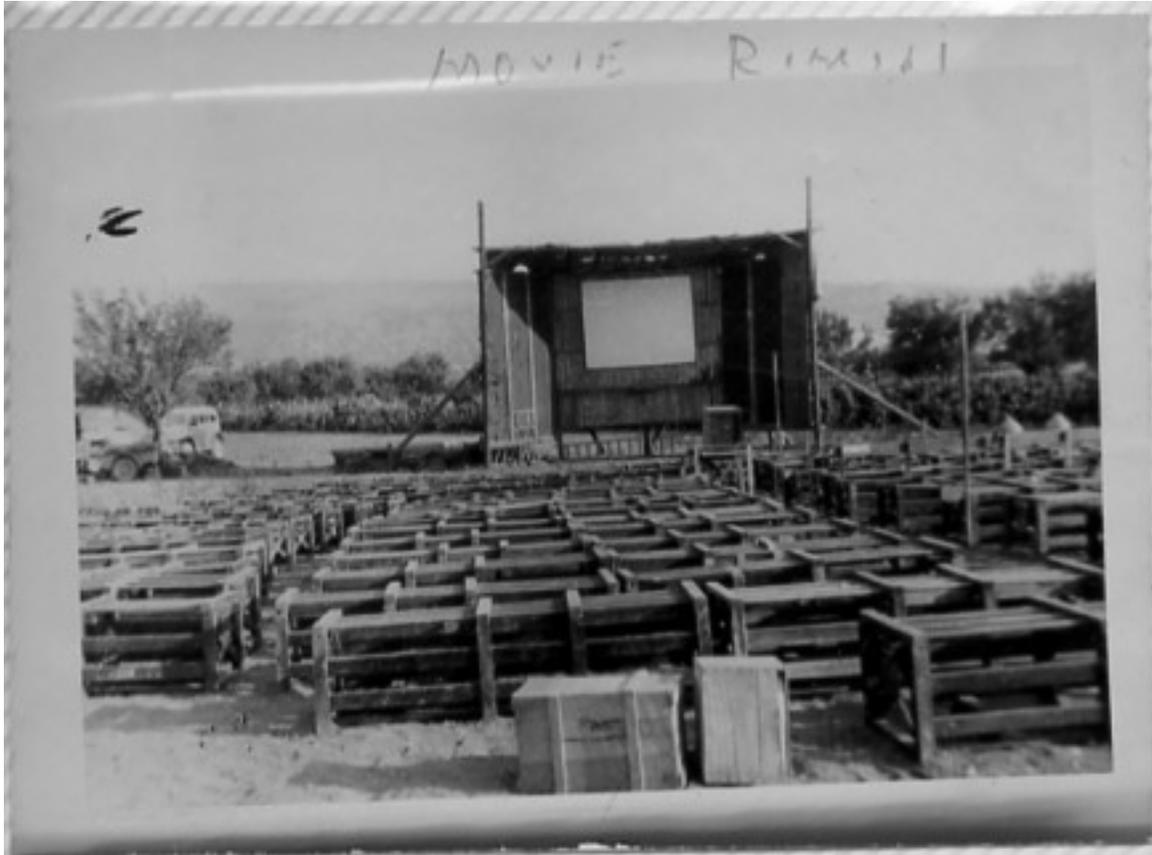

Hymie

A good bit of it was by air, as you guessed, but it just wasn't for the ride. I was going some place. I got a letter from Dzyzy this morning telling me of Meares instruction. If you can find out I would like to know what branch of service. I hope it's the infantry. They need strong backs and weak minds. The way you talk you can't last long at Portsmouth. I guess you'll get put to sea before it's all over. Do you remember the time I went to Fort Story to see Mr. Well that was the time I saw Henry Marcus. I didn't get to see his wife but I heard she was O.K. Maybe you could hit 'em up for a good meal. I sure wish I could. We haven't had any fresh meat for a long time.
